Proud Lesbian Women

By Diana Kerwin

There are demonstrations of pride on all kinds of levels. Some of them are individual but they contribute to the big picture in major and positive ways. I want to share a little bit about two individuals I am proud of personally and in whom we as a community can take pride as well. I'm sure there are others like them.

On June 9, 2000 Karen Vinciguerra graduated from Western Electrical Contractors Association (WECA), an apprenticeship program for electricians. For five years she faced all kinds of ups and downs, good and bad times. She began with a commitment to an employer and a program, but most importantly to herself. This commitment became a demonstration that a woman's discipline, determination, intellect and talents can carry her just as far as anyone else.

I asked Karen how she felt when she first made the decision to join the program:

"I tested for the surveyor program and WECA at the same time. WECA called first and I got started with my employer. Luckily, a friend was accepted into the surveyor program and gave me some feedback. This helped me decide to stick with WECA. When I was younger I didn't feel that the trades were an option for a girl. When I got a little older I realized it could be possible. I felt I had the aptitude and made the right decision to change a hobby into a career, get paid for something I enjoy, although I was a little afraid of putting my body to the physical test. I was starting a trade a bit older than most of the guys."

What expectations did you have?

"Probably all of the wrong ones. I thought it was all plugs and switches. I didn't think electricians had to get dirty. I was also apprehensive about the technical side."

What obstacles did you expect to face?

"I expected resistance being a woman in a man's world. That every day would be a test to prove that I could do what the men could. I felt like I was always on display. I wondered if I would be physically able to do all the work."

The program is strict and punishing. Apprentices work during the day and attend classes in the evening for five years. Life is not allowed to interfere with this regime. In Karen's case this meant limiting time for her social and personal life. The needs of her partner, four-legged children, family and friends were often compromised. She even had to experience the loss of her father, still meeting her commitment to the program and finding the time and strength to help her mother through everything. She has demonstrated many of the positive characteristics in women and that is a major contribution to our community and society.

I asked what she had to give of herself in joining the program.

"I took a cut in pay to change careers and it also cut into much of my time. I had to take on a second job. I used to enjoy weekends, going camping, to the ocean and spending time with my partner. I haven't had a whole weekend to do what I wanted in five years.

THIS ISSUE'S JOKE:

WE HAVE IT GOOD

God was finished with the basic structure on humanity and now it was time for the extras; the perks. So she said to Adam and Eve, "Ok, you've got the basic stuff; now who wants to be able to pee standing up?" Adam leaps to his feet and says, "Me! Oh please, I want to be able to pee standing up!!" So God says, "Tis granted". And Adam goes off happy. Then She turns to Eve and says, "Looks like all I have left are the multiple orgasms".

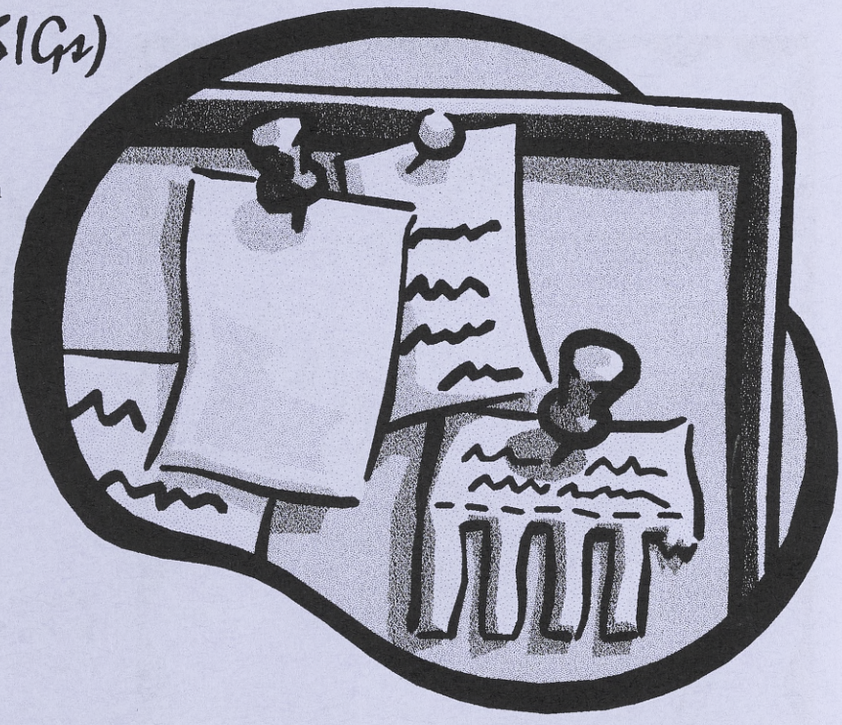
Special Interest Groups (SIGs) Bulletin



SACWN's SIGs are small, friendly groups of women who get together monthly (if not more often) to share activities of mutual interest. New members are always welcomed, so we encourage you to call the contact person listed to find out what activities are being planned.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Trying to come up with a calendar of events far enough into the future to meet our newsletter deadline has proven to be a bit of a challenge. With this in mind, we are changing our format to a more spontaneous one.

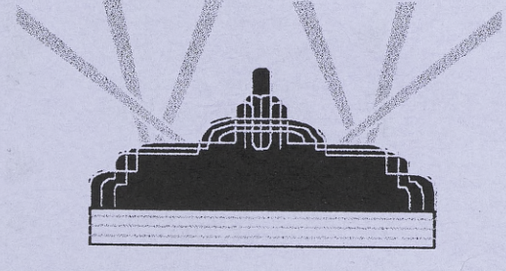
For example, in addition to advertised June/July events we went to see "Jodies Body", a very thought provoking one woman play dealing with apartheid. We enjoyed dinner at Serritella's before going to see the comedy, "Greater Tuna". We also heard the band "Funkengruven" at McKinley Park.

Of future interest, Sacramento Theatre Company has a wonderful season of plays scheduled beginning in September. We will also be going to Lambda Players productions. Second Saturday Art Walks are great fun too. Quite frequently we get together for dinner before attending a play.

So if you share our enthusiasm for live theatre, all kinds of music, art in all shapes and form then we are the group for you.

For information on upcoming events and to suggest an event for the group call Dee, 443-2377

Volunteer to be an usher and see the stage play as a thank you. Call Kathy 920-2162.



NEWCOMERS

Are you new to the area or the lifestyle? Want to meet new people? Give me a call and I will do all I can to provide you with information to help you get tuned in to the network of activities available. Diana, 487-3124.

I have forgotten what it is like to recreate. I have missed evenings in front of the fire and going out to dinner. I stopped karate lessons due to the added expense, time constraints and lack of energy after work. I gave up a lot of time with my dogs sometimes not being able to walk them until late at night."

What was most difficult for you to deal with?

Some of the behaviors of the men: "I grew up with four brothers so I knew I would need to be tolerant of their behavior instead of trying to change them. I had to ignore their littering and spitting chew and sunflower seeds. The Blue Room (port-a-potty) was the worst. Many of the pictures and writings all over the walls were offensive. Fortunately, I am now on a job site with indoor plumbing."

She was not just successful in completing the program, she was valedictorian of a class that started out with thirty-five and left only fourteen standing. She gave backbone to her goals. She made a strong statement to herself, her trade and our community. She is a lesbian role model to follow.

What kind of positive impact do you feel you've made?

"I've gained and earned respect from the men. I've shown them what a woman can do. Maybe they won't be prejudiced towards other women coming up; they will be more open-minded. I never thought of myself as a pioneer but hopefully others will see the opened door and take advantage of this career opportunity. Although it was not a role I was looking for I am proud to accept it."

What have you gained over the past five years?

Laughingly, she replied, "Calluses. Mostly, I gained confidence in myself and in my ability to do the work. To be able to look at a situation and not be overwhelmed by it. I'm not afraid anymore if something doesn't go quite as planned. I am more flexible. This confidence has helped me in all parts of my life."

What gives you the most pleasure now?

"Turning on that switch and seeing the lights come on and everything working properly. It's amazing! Now I have my own apprentice and my challenge is to be fair with him and help him learn. I see his excitement already and that's refreshing."

Now another has decided to make the same commitment and see if she can show the same strength of character. Laska S., first year apprentice, is only two weeks old. It took her awhile to summon enough courage and confidence to change her life. To decide to change her goals and even create some new ones. To face the fears of starting a new career when she had already spent twelve years of her life securing one. This time she feels it is more of what she wants to do as opposed to what others and society feel she should do.

It's frightening yet exciting. She knows she is in for a long haul and it will affect her in many ways. She knows she will have to give a lot of herself on all levels before she will be able to reap the benefits but the commitment is building inside of her and the weak, wobbly feeling will be held down by it.

I asked Laska how she felt when she made the decision.

"Scared. This will be a totally different type of career. I'm going from a clean and sterile environment to a dirty one with other things that crawl around in the dirt with you. I will still have to use my brain but I'll be using my body more as well."

What expectations do you have for yourself?

" To succeed. To accomplish my goals. I was successful before in becoming a good nurse. Now I'm going to learn how to build things. To turn on the lights and have them work. Now I will become a good electrician."

What obstacles do you expect to face?

"Working with men, dealing with their sexist comments and stereotypes. I expect their prejudices towards women in a field still thought of as a man's. Men assume that women can't do the job with the same vigor. I know I'll have to be physically strong enough even with new equipment that makes some of the physical work easier, like hydraulics.
I know it will cut into my playtime, staying up late. Also the work schedule is less flexible. I can't play late and come in for the swing shift. I have to get up early everyday and be able to work hard."

What do you think you'll have to give of yourself?

"Everything! Time. Dedication. It seems like a long time but its really not when you're changing careers. It will be an arduous journey to get above the grunge work."

What do you think will be the most difficult for you?

"Doing without time and money. I'm making less than half the money I'm used to. Now instead of popcorn, movies and a six-pack I have to make my lunch and have a beer. Getting up so early. Studying."

She is aware of the positives and negatives and she is ready to make her statement, her contribution. She will turn her fears into challenges, anxiety into accomplishments, and naivete into knowledge. She has the power within her to succeed and to benefit herself and the rest of society by the statement she makes.

What do you expect to gain by the end of the program?

"A new career; one that I want. A check for doing something I enjoy and doing it well. I always wanted to build things. Already I see buildings going up and I know something about how it is done. It felt good to help people while I was in nursing but this makes me happier. I will gain as much knowledge of the trade as I can. I also think I will gain self-knowledge and more self-esteem and confidence."

What kind of positive impact do you think you'll make?

" To show both men and women that a woman can do the job well if she is willing to do what it takes. That a woman can be proud of her abilities and use them with confidence. To demonstrate that we are not competing with men or trying to be men, we just enjoy the trade as they do. For myself it will increase my self-esteem and confidence just by being able to do what I want instead of what society thinks I should."

What will give you the most pleasure?

"Completing the program. Putting something together from beginning to end and making it work all by myself! Just thinking about being able to turn on the lights and knowing that it was my doing gives me pleasure right now. I'm looking forward to the real thing at the end of the program."

I know that I can look forward to June 2005 when I witness her celebration of success and feel the same pride in her as I did when Karen walked the stage.

There are many apprenticeship programs available for people interested in a trade. For more information you can contact Sacramento Works at 227-0207.

The Good Finger Follow-up

We received a few responses to last issue's article regarding the study that related sexual orientation and finger length; all who responded supported the premise of the study. They had ring fingers longer than their index fingers. Here are a couple of comments.

Teri: "I wish I had this information back when I was in High School. It sure would have validated what I was feeling, and made life back then much more fun!!!"

Nancy: "I will compare my findings with others and share the secret."

Remember, if your fingers don't match the stats it's no big deal. It's just another study. A lesbian is a lesbian not matter what your fingers look like. Enjoy yourselves and the women you love.

SACWN's First Annual Swinging into Spring 9-Hole Golf Tournament and BBQ

Thanks to all the women who came out to Champion Golf Links for our fabulous 9-hole golf tournament and bar-b-que. The morning began with beautiful sunny weather and on a very well groomed 9-hole golf course. As the women checked in they were given complimentary tee packs and a bucket of balls to practice on the driving range. If you walked past the driving range you could see the women gearing up for the heavy competition. Joe Tierney of Champion Golf Links, bid the teams good luck and gave them all a few pointers.

As the teams of women finished the 9-holes everyone gathered at the patio or in the air-conditioned restaurant for some bar-b-que and gossip (golf, of course). The food was delicious and consisted of chicken breasts, juicy hamburgers, coleslaw, and potato salad. Joe Tierney and I gathered the scorecards and tallied up the results while the golfers mingled and enjoyed the cool refreshments and food. Of course we then tallied up the scores again to make sure we added correctly.

Here's a list of the top prizes and the lucky women to whom they were awarded. SACWN, Camille Wojtasiak of Merrill Lynch and Joe Tierney, of Champion Golf Links donated prizes. Thank you! Donators.
